TERRY, DRUNK MAN, OFFICER DEMPSEY

Close up on Terry as he sits there in silence. We follow Terry as time passes, changing positions in the cell over and over again, trying to get comfortable.

He lays on a bench still, silent, until the sound of the cell door opens and a Drunk Man is pushed into the cell with Terry. He eyes off Terry.

DRUNK MAN

That's my seat.

TERRY

What're you on about?

DRUNK MAN (BRITISH ACCENT)

I said that's my seat governor.
Move!

Terry stands and moves to another section off the cell.

OFFICER REEVES
Watch your head.

No one answers Terry as the doors open and he is helped inside. Again we spend a moment with Terry not knowing what is happening... then the wagon's engine turns over and it begins to move.

3 INT. POLICE WAGON - MORNING
TERRY

3

Terry is seated, hands in cuffs, as he tries to steady himself while the vehicle travels down the road. The look of a broken man is evident on his face. The wagon travels for some time. Tears well in Terry's eyes. The wagon takes a hard turn and Terry is launched shoulder first into the (e) 332 590Tm /T

EXT. PUB - AFTERNOON
TERRY, RON

24

As Terry gets towards the back of the pub he sees Ron sitting there.

TERRY
Al right. Should you be...

Terry points to a sign that says 'No Blacks' with a quizzical expression.

RON
Money trumps ignorance though. What are you up to?

TERRY
Just heading home.

RON
You want a ride?

TERRY
No, I'm fine thanks.

RON
I'll drop you off?

TERRY
No, no, no. I need the walk.

Terry really doesn't want to be in the truck with Ron, knowing what he knows.

RON
Don't be crazy, m

Can I continue speaking with my son?

BILL
Go ahead.

TERRY
Wait til your mum gets back, she'll go mad about this -

Peter shakes his head.

PETER
Don't tell her.

TERRY
She has to know.

BILL
Does she?

Terry turns, him again.

TERRY
Excuse me?

BILL
Your wife's away. You're the man of the house, deal with it.

TERRY
I'm trying.

BILL
Your son here is getting into trouble. You know what they say, spare the rod, spoil the child.

TERRY
You want me to hit him for getting hit.

BILL
A man should be the king of his own castle. Not the jester.

Terry quickly stands and slaps the fork right out of Bill's mouth. The hall goes quiet.

TERRY
Peter, let's go.

He puts his hand out to Peter and they head off. Terry calls back to Bill.
